Sirs,

It is with great consternation, that I see this issue continuing to take up so much of the time in our courts at taxpayers expense. Microsoft may have made some errors of judgment, but AOL, and Netscape in particular, was attempting to corner the market themselves. They just finished last. This whole matter is about a competitive, capitalist market, and fairness for the most part is not the issue. I request that the USDOJ disallow this suit and let the market determine what it wants, and may the best, or most aggressive win.

Regards,

Raphael L. Jones
